Floods in Kerala

Kerala, the southernmost state of India, experienced floods for the first time in the present generation. More than 100 people died in the first two days of this sad event. The Navy, Air Force and Army of the Central Government were mobilised to save lives across the impacted regions.

Our church also joined our Government in helping the people, irrespective of caste or creed. The Youth Conference scheduled for August 21 to 24 was postponed. We are sorry to disappoint visitors from different parts of the world who had made all the preparations to reach Thrissur, Kerala, India. Sadly, Cochin International Airport was under water.

On August 15th we celebrated the 71st anniversary of the Independence of India which coincided with the Shunaya of Marth Mariam. We were hoping that the Youth Conference would be conducted as scheduled. Normally, Thrissur and Cochin International airports are safe areas. On the mentioned day, the situation changed with rain, floods and the overflow of Kerala dams turning the situation from bad to worse. The calculated loss is massive and is bound to increase as the situation stabilises.

Our Mart Mariam Cathedral Parish in Thrissur minimised the expenses of the Shunaya Day celebrations and collected contributions for the relief effort under the leadership of the Vicar, Fr. Binu Joseph Ponnokaren, with faithful contributing Rs. 2 lakhs (two hundred thousand) towards the Flood Relief Fund. Mar Addai Shleekha Parish rushed urgent medicines and clothes worth the same amount to the relief effort under the leadership of their Vicar, Fr. K.R.Inasu. As most of our church buildings are constructed at a far distance from rivers and dams, we do not anticipate any serious damage to our church buildings.

Let us all pray for the people of our Kerala state. Now the floods are spreading to some other areas of India. We cannot imagine the volume of calamity if the present rains continue, as the regular monsoon season is not over yet. We used to pray for rain. Now we pray to God Almighty that the rains may cease as dams and rivers are overflowing.

The new dates suggested for the Youth Conference are 26 – 29 December 2018, the day after Christmas.

WCC Rejoices at Reconciliation of Orthodox Synods in Ethiopia

The St. Mary's cathedral in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia World Council of Churches

14 August 2018

In a letter addressed to the prime minister of Ethiopia Dr Abiy Ahmed, on 13 August, Rev. Dr Olav Fykse Tveit, general secretary of the World Council of Churches (WCC), conveyed heartfelt congratulations in the decisive role played by Ahmed to ensure the reconciliation of the two synods and unity of the Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church after 27 years of separation.

“This is a remarkable achievement and a historic moment for the entire Christian family”, said Tveit. ”The unity of the Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church, a historic and ancient church, is central to the unity of Ethiopia itself, a historic and ancient nation”, he added.

Abiy, who become prime minister in April, personally intervened in the talks that led to the reunification of the Orthodox Church.

The WCC general secretary also sent letters to His Holiness Abune Mathias I, patriarch of Ethiopia, archbishop of Axum, Echegue of the See of St. Tekelehaimanot, and His Holiness Abunä Merkorios, patriarch of Ethiopia, Addis Ababa, congratulating both for historic reconciliation achieved within the Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church.

“This is a historic kairos moment of jubilation and celebration not only for Ethiopians, but for the entire ecumenical family”, wrote Tveit. ”The journey was long and arduous, but oikoumene (unity) won in the end. To God be the glory!” he added.

The Ethiopian Orthodox Church, which traces its roots back to the 4th century, is one of the oldest organized Christian bodies in the world. More than 40% of Ethiopia’s population of about 100 million are adherents of the Orthodox Church.

WCC Calls for Prayer for Flood-stricken Kerala, India

18 August 2018

As the worst flooding in half a century struck the southern India state of Kerala, World Council of Churches general secretary Rev. Dr Olav Fykse Tveit called for prayers for those affected and for those responding, and expressed his sympathy for those who have lost loved ones in the disaster.

The flooding has killed more than 300 people and left thousands stranded. The area remains under grave threat of floods and landslides.

“Our hearts go out to people living in terrible fear in what has become a precarious situation,” said Tveit, who also commended the many churches on the ground assisting in rescue operations and relief work.

“Local churches have become especially important in bringing hope to remote villages cut off by flooding that has destroyed roads and bridges,” Tveit said. “We also hear reports of damage to churches and relief centers, and we pray for those trying to respond even while coping with their own losses.”

The Church of South India (CSI) was reporting that church buildings and mission centers have been damaged or destroyed, and that many are still inaccessible to rescuers. Floods have reached the second floors of houses and buildings, while gushing water has devastated low-lying and coastal areas, the CSI reported.

In Vandiperiyar, an affected area in the Idukki district, roads are washed out, resulting total isolation. “Many people including the CSI priest in this area are now in the relief camp. The rain took away many of their houses,” reads a CSI report. In the same district, the Cheruthoni Church is also at high risk.

People from churches, parish halls, schools, and colleges, youth and priests, students and families, were all in some way contributing to the rescue work. Many were collecting food kits and distributing them in relief camps. CSI parishes outside the area were also responding.

Youth Conference in India

Due to floods in Kerala the Youth Conference of India scheduled for August was postponed. However the delegates from Chicago had arrived in Dubai. They visited our church members in UAE and returned to USA.

Around 16 delegates from Iraq came to New Delhi, Jaypore, Mysore etc. and finally visited Kerala too after the floods had subsided.

Foreign delegates from other places refunded their air tickets.

Foreign Donations

There are some restrictions to receiving foreign donations in India. Therefore please send an email and ask for legal and fast transfer of money to India before sending each donation. The government of India is checking whether any foreign money is coming for terrorist activities in India. Kindly send e-mail to hgmaraprem@gmail.com.

Visitors from USA and Iraq

On Sunday 26 August 2018, Youth Conference delegates from Iraq attended Holy Qurbana at our St. Stephen's Church in Delhi, capital of India. Fr. Mohan Konikara, Vicar and Deacon Sinto, assistant Vicar of our Delhi parish welcomed our guests from Iraq.

They are planning to visit Thrissur in Kerala before they return to Iraq.

Delegates from Chicago reached Dubai in UAE before they came to know that the Youth Conference was postponed due to the floods in Kerala. However, they joined with our Mart Mariam Parish in UAE for Holy Qurbana at St. Martin's Anglican Church on Friday 24 August 2018.

They gave a good donation for the flood relief activities in Kerala. Fr. Sachin Timothy welcomed them and thanked them for their donation for the unfortunate people in Kerala. The estimated loss of the floods so far is twenty thousand crore Indian Rupees. That means two hundred thousand million Indian Rupees. It is going to increase after the total loss is calculated. One crore is ten million. One million is ten lakhs. An American dollar is about 68 rupees after deducting bank commission etc. It fluctuates often.

“Youth as Transforming Agents: A Christian Ethical Engagement with the Current Issues”

Fr. Lijo Rapheal B.A., B.D., M.Th. (Ph.D Student)

Abstracts of Youth Conference classes to be held on 26-28 Dec. 2018

This paper intends to look at the topic in Christian ethical point of view. Jesus, being an epitome for the collective identity of ‘youth’ has taught us how to transform within and our surroundings. His ethical practices and teachings challenged the traditional and conservative minds of the people and society. He introduced a new life and order which was intend to give liberation to the poor and downtrodden.

Ethical teachings of Jesus will make great impact on youth. Often times, youth are brought into a Church to be “reformers.” The expectation is that they are going to bring radical and noticeable change and development to the Church. The measurement of expectations in reforming the church are through the creativity level of the youth and involvement. The burden of the change and reformation rests on the shoulders of the clergies, and they are expected to jump in and take charge of everything. There is a challenge to be called out as reformers and being overwhelmed by unreal expectations or end up getting burnt out. A reformation starts by reformation within.

Identity given to youth is ‘Christ-like’ identity. This poses several challenges before the youth to take up the role as transformers in the church and society. How we should respond to the call to be reformers of the Church and society? Initially, its more on being faithful to the scripture and learning how to interpret it in the current context. There are several tools and methods to achieve it. Secondly, identity of youth is prophetic in nature. Prophets intervenes in a particular situation when there is crisis. When social injustice, inequality, cultural disintegration, and immorality rules over a society, prophets make their entrance with the divine message of justice and truth. Prophet is always conscious of his vocation and commitment and has a deep awareness that the source of his mission is in God. Youth should risk their life for the sake others. In the place of a culture of forced silence, a counter-culture of protest must be re-born.

Youth, being transformers of community is responsible to take up the mission of Jesus. The mission of the Church is nothing less than adopting the mission of the saviour. The focus of the mission should be Christ-centered. The joys, sorrows, tears and suffering of the people should be in the perspective of mission. The voice of the historically disinherited groups like the Harijans, the tribals, the landless, etc., the demand for better wages and basic human rights, the efforts to bridge the gulf between the rich, middle and poor, the struggle for literacy and education, the cry for economic and social justice are the evidences of the activity of Christ among the humanity. The culture of Jesus Should be implanted in the Church.

In this scenario, this paper initiate discussions on ethical teachings of Jesus, stories from other theologians and church fathers, different views of interpreting bible with the current issues, methodological trends of Jesus and new challenges before youth to address.

“In the beginning when God created the heavens and the earth”. Why does the Bible begins with Creation?

Fr. Jos Jacob Vengassary

Abstracts of Youth Conference classes to be held on 26-28 Dec. 2018

During the 19th and 20th centuries much has been discussed about the Creation narrative in the Old Testament since Darwin presented his “Theory of evolution by natural selection”. Even now there are Christian fundamentalists who believe that Creation in the Bible is a historical fact. However, the concern of the Biblical writers was not to assert the historicity and scientific correctness of Creation in the Bible. For, they knew too well that there existed a very similar narrative in Mesopotamia. Many cultures in the then known world had their thoughts about the origin of the universe and later penned it down in their religious texts. What they have in common is the belief that the human beings originated not by itself but created for a purpose. But they differed in defining what the purpose was.

The biblical narrative of creation has many things in common with Ancient Near Eastern narratives of Creation of Humankind. Surprisingly enough, one of them even begins with almost the same phrase. This narrative from Mesopotamia begins with “Enuma Elish” which is translated in English as “When on High”. The Book of Genesis begins with “In the Beginning”, which also may be translated as “when on High”. The Hebrew phrase consists of a preposition and a word. The preposition means in or on. The root meaning of the word means Beginning, Height, Peak etc. The similarity between the two is not limited at the beginning, but also in their content too. However, they differ in their motives. The whole purpose of the Mesopotamian narrative is related to the enthronement of the national god as king over other gods, and he rules over the gods like his devotee, the emperor who rules over other nations.

The purpose of the creation narrative in the Bible is not primarily to depict Yahweh as a sovereign as in the above narrative, but as Almighty, who is powerful enough to bring his people back to their land, from where they were forcefully taken as captives. For that, He uses other rulers as His instruments. God is the Almighty and controls the forces of nature, which in the Mesopotamian narrative were worshipped as gods. Thus, the purpose of the biblical narrative is neither to ascertain the historicity of Creation nor to validate the scientific correctness of the creation. It is a confession of faith that the God they believe will free them from their hardships while they are in bondage and that He will bring them back to their homeland, which He has given them earlier, but was lost in the meantime, and that they will be able to worship Him in His Temple and they shall again be one: Yahweh and His People.

THE ASSYRIAN CHURCH OF THE EAST IN ABROAD AND INDIA: ECCLESIOLOGICAL AND HIERARCHICAL RELATIONSHIP TILL 16TH CENTURY - A HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

Rev. Fr. Cyril Antony (Ph D Student Dharmaram Bangalore)

Abstracts of Youth Conference classes to be held on 26-28 Dec. 2018

The Church of the Thomas Christians of India, which is as old as Christianity itself, is the legitimate heir of a unique ecclesial heritage among the Churches. St. Thomas the apostle sowed the seed of Christianity in India. It is an ancient tradition shared by Christians that St. Thomas, one of the twelve apostles of Christ came to India and founded Christian community in seven places.

This Indian community was constituted and reinvigorated by groups of Christians who came from Persia. It is beyond doubt that some kind of relation between the Christian of Indian and the Church of Persia existed from very early centuries. The available evidences of the early period of the Church in India reveal to us the image of an indigenous Church maintaining ecclesiastical solidarity with the neighboring Churches of the region. But on the other hand, the Babylonians were the first people to accept as a race the gospel of Jesus Christ, and they understood and appreciated the messianic faith in a manner in which was not possible for the other races to which it was completely alien.

The Church in India was in close alliance with the neighboring Churches in the Persian Empire. As it had been the custom of the early Church, the Church in India also formed part of the regional grouping of the Churches. The local Churches in the East outside the Greco-Roman world developed a kind of solidarity and the Patriarchal see of Seleucia-Ctesiphon merged as its centre.

The ecclesiastical alliance between Persia and India was based on several factors. Among them the St Thomas tradition is the most fundamental one. The Church in Persia holds on to the tradition that St Thomas on his way to India did visit Persia and founded their first Christian community. The St Thomas Christians always believed that St Thomas is the founder of their Church. The Church in Edessa (Persia) claims the same apostolic tradition through Mar Addai and Mar Mari, disciples of St Thomas. A common patrimony did build up a common solidarity.

The close commercial relations which existed between the Middle East and India brought the Churches of these countries into closer contact. The presence of the colonies of the Jewish merchants and the early converts from among them paved the way for the use of the Syriac language for worship. From the very beginning of their Church the Syriac heritage has always been a source of inspiration and prestige for the Thomas Christians. It was a means of their communion and close link with the centers of the early Christianity. During the time of persecution in the Persian Empire many Christians fled for safety to India. These immigrants were welcomed into Indian community whole heartedly.

Thomas Christians esteemed their East Syrian (Persian) liturgical heritage as an integral part of their apostolic heritage. Their attachment to this language and liturgy was very deep rooted. The Portuguese missionaries on the other hand, were not prepared to respect the sensibilities of the Thomas Christians. The presence of the Jewish Christians in India has paved the way for accepting the Syrian liturgy and language at the very beginning itself.
